I. MATTERS CALLING FOR ACTION BY THE COMMISSION ON NARCOTIC DRUGS OR BROUGHT TO ITS ATTENTION

A. Draft resolutions to be recommended by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs for adoption by the Economic and Social Council

1. The Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies (HONLEA), Latin America and the Caribbean, recommends to the Commission on Narcotic Drugs the approval of the following draft resolutions for adoption by the Economic and Social Council:

DRAFT RESOLUTION I

Establishment of subregional drug law enforcement training centres

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs

Recommends to the Economic and Social Council the adoption of the following draft resolution:

"The Economic and Social Council,

"Recalling its resolution 1988/12 of 25 May 1988, in which it requested the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the United Nations Secretariat, in co-operation with the International Criminal Police Organization, the Customs Co-operation Council, other interested organizations and Member States, to establish a long-term international training strategy for drug law enforcement,

"Mindful of the urgent need to establish a drug law enforcement training strategy suited to the Latin America and Caribbean region and subregions,

"Mindful also of the urgent need to secure adequate training facilities and services, to enhance the capacity of personnel and, in general, to upgrade the response of Latin America and Caribbean drug law enforcement agencies and to improve countermeasures,

"Drawing special attention to the variety of language groups within the region, as well as to the urgent need for those groups to combat the drug problem together,

"Recognizing the important advisory role that experienced and well-equipped drug law enforcement agencies and institutions in the region could play in carrying out training activities throughout the region,

"1. Recommends the establishment, within established law enforcement training schools that already possess adequate facilities, of subregional drug law enforcement training centres to provide such training in all the languages of the region;

"2. Invites the Division of Narcotic Drugs to convene a working group, to include countries of the region representing the main language groups, other international or regional organizations concerned with drug law enforcement training in the region and donor countries supporting such training in the region, for the purpose of defining a clear training strategy, which should include recommendations for the establishment of subregional drug law enforcement training centres;

"3. Invites the Division of Narcotic Drugs and the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control to develop and co-ordinate the above-mentioned subregional training activities, in close co-operation with the International Criminal Police Organization and the Customs Co-operation Council;

"4. Invites States and the United Nations to support such training activities as much as is possible, in particular by providing human and financial resources."

DRAFT RESOLUTION II

Control of chemicals used in the production of cocaine, heroin and other clandestinely produced drugs

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs

Recommends to the Economic and Social Council the adoption of the following draft resolution:

"The Economic and Social Council,

"Aware that chemicals are critical in the processing of illicit drugs, that chemicals produced world-wide are shipped to Latin America and that a large percentage of these chemicals is being diverted to the drug cartels,

"Welcoming the escalated effort of Latin American countries to restrict the import, export and production of chemicals, as demonstrated by the recommendations contained in the model regulations to control chemicals and other materials used in the processing of cocaine and other illicit drugs, 1/ adopted by the General Assembly of the Organization of American States in June 1990,

"Noting that six Latin American nations are currently adopting the said model regulations for their legislation and that other nations are considering similar action,

"Recognizing the importance of controlling the export of these chemicals, as illustrated by the fact that the issue of chemical control was raised at the drug summit held at Cartagena, Colombia, in February 1990, and at the economic summit held at Houston, United States of America, in July 1990,

1/ RM/NARCO/doc.18/90 rev.1, issued by the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

"Considering that the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, adopted by a conference of plenipotentiaries convened by the United Nations at Vienna from 25 November to 20 December 1988, 2/ is specifically addressed to chemical control, and that this Convention enters into force in November 1990,

"Noting that the United States of America took positive action in 1988 by promulgating the Chemical Diversion and Trafficking Act, which gives its Drug Enforcement Administration the authority to stop shipments of chemicals not destined for legitimate industrial, commercial or scientific use,

"Convinced that it is vital to the world-wide anti-drug-abuse effort that chemicals used to process illicit drugs are controlled and monitored at the source and the destination, and that the resulting information is communicated to the competent authorities of the country concerned,

"Bearing in mind the fact that the Council of Ministers of the European Communities is currently considering a draft directive for the control of chemicals, which, if adopted, will be the standard for each member State of the European Communities for use as its domestic chemical control legislation,

"Wishing to ensure that measures to control precursor chemicals are both specific and comprehensive in designating the chemicals subject to monitoring and control, including for example 2-butanone (methyl ethyl ketone) and potassium permanganate,

"1. Urges all Governments that have not approved legislation for the control and monitoring of precursors and essential chemicals to do so as soon as possible, using as one of their references the model regulations 1/ adopted by the Organization of American States to control precursors and chemical substances, machines and materials used in the production of cocaine, heroin and other clandestinely produced drugs;

"2. Urges the main producers of precursors and essential chemicals in Europe and elsewhere to work with the Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies and the International Narcotics Control Board to draft and enact suitably comprehensive laws taking into account the model regulations adopted by the Organization of American States;

"3. Requests the United Nations and the competent regional and interregional organizations to make available the funds and support required for the provision of training in the application of regulations for the control and monitoring of precursors and essential chemicals, as well as the resources required in order to establish specialized offices in that field."

B. Draft resolutions for adoption by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs

2. The Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, recommends to the Commission on Narcotic Drugs the adoption of the following draft resolutions:

DRAFT RESOLUTION I

Establishment and funding of a Latin American and Caribbean region liaison officer for matters concerning the Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs,

Referring to the proposal by Bolivia, supported by the Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, for the establishment of a committee, to be composed of the Bureau elected at that Meeting, to follow up progress and action on the recommendations and resolutions of the Meeting,

Recognizing the role of the various drug control bodies of the United Nations in convening meetings of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies and supporting and funding many activities to combat the drug problem in the Latin American and Caribbean region,

Aware of the absence of regular budget funds within those United Nations bodies to support staffing levels commensurate with the demands made upon them,

Noting the determination of the General Assembly at its seventeenth special session, devoted to the question of international co-operation against illicit production, supply, demand, trafficking and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, expressed in the Global Programme of Action, to accord, within the United Nations system, a higher priority to the allocation of the necessary financial, personnel and other resources, 1/

Recognizing the benefits that can result from carefully planned regional meetings that identify operational law enforcement problems, seek solutions and encourage a shared regional and international responsibility for implementing those solutions,

1. Urges the Secretary-General to allocate resources to permit the appointment of a regional liaison officer for Latin America and the Caribbean, to be based in the Division of Narcotic Drugs at Vienna and closely involved in the organization of regional meetings of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, in order to provide a full-time link between the countries of the region and all international, regional and subregional organizations active in the region;

1/ See General Assembly resolution S-17/2, annex, para. 7.

2. Requests that consideration be given to assigning priority to the establishment of this post for Latin America and the Caribbean, in view of the magnitude and complexity of the drug-related problem in this region.

DRAFT RESOLUTION II

Establishment of national drug co-ordinating units

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs,

Aware of the importance of national drug co-ordinating units in the fight against illicit trafficking and drug abuse,

Recognizing that the need for direction and support of these units at the political level is essential to their success,

Referring to the international drug control treaties and to recommendation 4, 1/ adopted by the Second Interregional Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, held at Vienna from 11 to 15 September 1989,

Recommends:

(a) That each Government in Latin America and the Caribbean that has not yet done so should take the necessary measures to set up a national drug intelligence unit as a basis for co-ordinating operations;

(b) That the co-ordinating units should be provided with adequate resources to function efficiently;

(c) That persons appointed to work in the co-ordinating units should be carefully selected and should remain in their posts as long as necessary in order to ensure continuity;

(d) That periodic consultations or annual meetings should be organized between the co-ordinating units at the subregional level;

(e) That international assistance should be provided to Governments, at their request, in setting up the co-ordinating units in order to harmonize their mandates, scope of operations, terms of reference and objectives;

(f) That each country in Latin America and the Caribbean should give the relevant United Nations drug control bodies details of the structure of their national co-ordinating units, including the names of current incumbents and the necessary contact data, for circulation to international agencies or organizations.

1/ E/CN.7/1990/2, chap. I, resolution III, para. 7.

DRAFT RESOLUTION III

Appointment of a standing committee of Member States responsible for following up the resolutions and recommendations approved by the Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs,

Aware that the world-wide problem of illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, including their production and illicit use, as well as the diversion of chemical precursors for their production, continues to have devastating consequences for individuals and States,

Noting with satisfaction that the approval of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances reflects the political will of nations to combat the drug scourge,

Bearing in mind that the various meetings of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies have approved high-priority resolutions, decisions and recommendations aimed at helping to eliminate the causes of the problem of narcotic drug abuse,

Bearing in mind also the need to ensure implementation of the recommendations and resolutions adopted at the various meetings of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies,

1. Decides to establish a standing committee, composed of the Bureau of the Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, which shall, with the co-operation of the Secretariat, ensure appropriate follow-up of the application and implementation by Governments of the resolutions, recommendations and decisions adopted by the Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies and report thereon to each of the meetings;

2. Further decides that, without any financial implications for the United Nations, delegations involved in the sponsorship of the said resolutions and recommendations shall be entitled to sit on the committee.

C. Venue of future meetings of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean

3. The representative of Bolivia confirmed the offer made by his Government at the Second Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, at Lima, to act as host to the Fourth Meeting, to be held at Santa Cruz de la Sierra in the first half of October 1991. The offer was accepted.

4. The representative of Mexico informed the Meeting of his Government's willingness to act as host to the Fifth Meeting, which, in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 1988/15 stipulating that no regional meetings of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies (HONLEA) be held in the same year as an interregional meeting, was to take place in 1993. That offer was also accepted.

5. The representative of Cuba stated that his Government would be prepared to act as host to the Sixth Meeting, to be held in 1994.

D. Resolution adopted by the Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean

6. The Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, adopted the following resolution:

Regional and interregional co-operation

The Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean,

Noting with great satisfaction the Political Declaration and the Global Programme of Action 1/ adopted by the General Assembly at its seventeenth special session, devoted to the question of international co-operation against illicit production, supply, demand, trafficking and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, which reflects the degree of concern about the subject that is felt throughout the world,

Expresses its gratitude for the work done and the support given by the Division of Narcotic Drugs, on the initiative and with the encouragement of its Director, in activating the establishment of a world-wide network of regional and interregional co-operation facilities for assisting States in preventing and countering illicit traffic and the abuse of drugs at a more effective universal level.

7. The Commission may wish to take note of the decision of working group II, on illicit traffic in cannabis, in which the Commission of Narcotic Drugs was urged to step up its work on cannabis. This, and related matters, are fully dealt with in chapter II, section B, below.

II. CONSIDERATION OF URGENT MATTERS OR SPECIFIC TOPICS BY SUBREGIONAL OR AD HOC WORKING GROUPS

8. The Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, decided, under agenda item 3, to consider a number of specialized topics in separate working groups, in order to permit in-depth discussion and to encourage a frank exchange of information and opinions. Following their deliberations on the nature and extent of each of the issues and the most effective manner of dealing with them, the working groups presented their conclusions and practical recommendations to the meeting for consideration. The meeting adopted all the recommendations. Topics selected on the basis of the interest expressed by the participants were:

(a) Illicit traffic in cocaine: the latest situation; likely developments in 1991;

(b) Illicit traffic in cannabis: the latest situation; likely developments in 1991;

(c) Co-ordination at the national level: problems and advantages of setting up a national co-ordination unit;

1/ General Assembly resolution S-17/2, annex.

(d) Control of precursors and essential chemicals: the problems and how to overcome them;

(e) Setting up of national intelligence units: units at the national or regional levels; advantages and disadvantages; steps to be taken in setting up a unit;

(f) Tracing of assets and measures to counter money laundering: how to begin and how to achieve more effective results;

(g) Co-operating informants.

A. Working group I: Illicit traffic in cocaine

9. Working group I drew conclusions and made recommendations under two headings: (a) the general nature of cocaine traffic problems; and (b) operational law enforcement considerations.

1. General nature of the problem of illicit traffic in cocaine

10. Given that the different phases and aspects of the problem of illicit traffic in narcotic drugs was the responsibility of all countries, the working group welcomed the fact that the international community had taken a comprehensive approach to the problem.

11. That approach embraced various political, social, economic and cultural factors, which, in turn, called for specific solutions commensurate with the complexity of the problem.

12. It was apparent that, despite national and international efforts, the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs was expanding. That conclusion was based on the following factors:

(a) A relocation of bases of operations as a result of the opening of new routes and new markets and the use of sophisticated refining processes;

(b) Conclusive evidence that transport mechanisms and systems were being used for illicit traffic, particularly by sea;

(c) Emergence of the mobile system, using portable laboratories, as a means of eluding police raids;

(d) Evidence of cocaine paste being exported to the consumption markets, which suggested that new laboratories had been set up to refine it.

13. New bases of operations had emerged in the narcotic drug traffic cycle, comprising territories in which large quantities of drugs that had already been processed were deposited for storage and subsequent distribution in smaller quantities to the consumer countries.

14. Programmes for the eradication of illicit cultivation needed to include socio-economic projects, which would provide new sources of subsistence for the populations involved in producing coca, and an integrated approach must be taken that did not consist solely of interdiction programmes.

15. On the basis of its discussions, the working group agreed the following draft recommendations for submission to the plenary:

(a) Governments should be alerted to the need to intensify bilateral and multilateral interdiction operations in frontier areas, with a view to combating illicit drug traffic more effectively;

(b) National juridical arrangements needed to be strengthened and made commensurate with the seriousness and complexity of the illicit drug traffic phenomenon in order to neutralize the new forms illicit traffic was assuming;

(c) The systems for the exchange of information and intelligence among the countries in Latin America and the Caribbean needed to be improved in order to counter the increase in illicit traffic, particularly through ports and airports;

(d) Support needed to be given to policies for the eradication of illicit coca crops, crop substitution programmes and alternative development programmes, since those policies highlighted the strengthening of economic and social plans, as well as of investment programmes involving the participation of multilateral organizations and Governments of developed countries, with a view to promoting viable economic conditions capable of ensuring their success;

(e) The prevention programmes of agencies engaged in combating illicit narcotics traffic and drug abuse needed to be stepped up, paying special attention to education as a means of discouraging drug use;

(f) The United Nations Secretariat should be requested to establish a follow-up standing committee, composed of members of the Bureau of HONLEA, to promote the implementation of the agreements reached at HONLEA meetings. For the text of the proposal to be submitted to the Commission on Narcotic Drugs, see chapter I, section B, draft resolution III.

(b) Operational law enforcement considerations

16. The working group also examined operational law enforcement considerations, including law enforcement techniques, airdrops, the monitoring of movements of sailing vessels and aircraft and regional liaison.

17. The working group recognized the value, in particular, of "controlled delivery" as an effective method for identifying and dismantling drug trafficking networks and noted that article 11 of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (E/CONF.82/15 and Corr.2), adopted by a conference of plenipotentiaries convened by the United Nations at Vienna from 25 November to 20 December 1988, provided for, and encouraged, the use of that technique. Participants urged all countries in the Caribbean and Latin American region to examine existing legislation and, where appropriate, take steps to amend it to conform to the provisions of that Convention and thus to facilitate the use of controlled delivery and encouraged all countries that already permitted controlled delivery to review and improve their procedures to ensure that decisions to authorize controlled delivery were made promptly.

18. The working group expressed concern about the continuing and increasing use by traffickers of airdrops of illicit drugs in Caribbean waters and noted also that, as surveillance and enforcement measures on the direct trafficking routes across the Caribbean were strengthened, trafficking was being deviated to the Eastern Caribbean. Participants recommended that in developing interdiction strategies to deal with the problem, law enforcement authorities should pay particular attention to the need for effective measures to apprehend the pilots of aircraft and the personnel on boats involved in airdrops and transport of illicit drugs. In addition, they recommended that arrangements for custody and prosecution of those involved in trafficking should be reviewed and strengthened.

19. In the light of recent evidence of the increasing use of yachts and pleasure boats, as well as aircraft, for the transport and trafficking of drugs from and through Latin America and the Caribbean region, the working group stressed the need for efficient gathering and circulation of information on the identity and movement of such sailing vessels and aircraft. They underlined the importance of making full use of the Joint Information and Co-ordination Centre/El Paso Intelligence Centre (JICC/EPIC) system for that purpose, and urged the Governments and law enforcement agencies of all countries in the region to review and, where possible, strengthen their involvement in that system. They identified the need for the development, both within individual countries in the region and in the JICC/EPIC framework, of systems for analysis and for the production of profiles, to enable law enforcement agencies to target suspect ships and aircraft more effectively. The value of the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control/International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO/Interpol) secure communication system in facilitating rapid contact between the countries in the region was acknowledged. It was recommended that the arrangements for use of that system in each country be closely examined as a matter of urgency in order to ensure that the communication system was readily accessible to those agencies responsible for drug law enforcement.

20. Recognizing the particular operational tasks and difficulties that law enforcement agencies in the Caribbean islands were encountering in anti-narcotic work, and the value of close liaison between those directly engaged in drug law enforcement in each island territory, the working group endorsed the recommendation made at the Caribbean Drugs Training Co-ordination Group Meeting, held at Kingston in 1989, that there should be periodic meetings of senior regional law enforcement officers responsible for drug intelligence. Participants decided to recommend to their Governments that such regional meetings within the Caribbean be arranged, with the support and participation as appropriate of relevant regional and international organizations, as a complement to the existing contacts between the Caribbean and Latin American countries at HONLEA meetings and elsewhere.

B. Working group II: Illicit traffic in cannabis

21. Working group II, on the basis of statements made and of specific proposals submitted by various delegations, agreed that there was a difference in the treatment of cannabis compared with other drugs of abuse and the substances used to manufacture them. Because of the damage caused by the use and abuse of cannabis, co-operation was needed among countries, as was a sustained campaign against the sowing and cultivation of cannabis. They recognized that cannabis crops were being found in increasingly large numbers in non-traditional places and that the developing countries needed financial assistance for crop substitution programmes. The importance of exchanging information between intelligence services and of providing the personnel with adequate training and equipment was stressed.

22. The working group agreed to submit to the plenary meeting the following recommendations:

(a) Adequate priority should be assigned at the international level to the problem of cannabis production, trafficking and use;

(b) The work of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs on cannabis should be stepped up;

(c) Programmes to promote awareness of the damage caused by the use and abuse of this drug, as well as programmes for the rehabilitation of addicts, should be strengthened;

(d) All countries should consider the possibility of working together, with full respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and legislation of each country, on effecting controlled deliveries of cannabis and other drugs, with a view to apprehending not only the courier but also the other syndicate members responsible for organizing the importation or benefiting from the profits it might generate;

(e) A sustained campaign should be conducted against the sowing and cultivation of cannabis, accompanied by a monitoring of changes in the production structure in order that each country might make the efforts required to eradicate it;

(f) There should be greater international co-operation with respect to financial assistance for crop substitution programmes.

23. The following recommendations were also proposed, not specifically for cannabis but for other types of drugs as well:

(a) Bilateral agreements should be signed, within the framework of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotics and Psychotropic Substances (E/CONF.82/15 and Corr.2), on co-operation in combating the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs;

(b) An adequate exchange of information should be developed so as to strengthen intelligence mechanisms for identifying narcotic drug traffickers;

(c) Adequate training and equipment should be provided for those assigned to the task of combating the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs.

C. Working group III: Co-ordination at the national level

24. Working group III approved a draft resolution for submission to the plenary on the establishment of national drug co-ordinating units. For the text, see chapter I, section B, draft resolution II.

D. Working group IV: Control of precursors and essential chemicals

25. Working group IV discussed and agreed on the text of two draft resolutions, which were approved by the plenary for submission to the Commission on Narcotic Drugs on the control of chemicals used in the production of cocaine, heroin and other clandestinely produced drugs. For the texts, see chapter I, section A, draft resolution II, and section B, draft resolution III.

26. The working group recognized the importance of holding an international conference on the control of precursors and other chemicals used in the illicit production of narcotic drugs, and expressed its support for Bolivia's initiative with respect to the holding of such a conference in January 1991.

E. Working group V: Setting-up of national intelligence units

27. Working group V approved the text of the following draft recommendations for submission to the plenary:

(a) All countries represented should treat as a priority the setting-up of drug intelligence units on the basis of a co-ordinated, multi-agency approach, thereby involving all those agencies and groups engaged in investigating drug trafficking and related criminal activities;

(b) In considering the setting-up of a national drug intelligence unit, those charged with the responsibility for it should seek a commitment from the relevant agencies to participate fully and accept the concept of a national co-ordinating drug intelligence unit;

(c) Recognition should be accorded to the fact that drug trafficking, unlawful use of firearms, fraud and indeed crime in general were linked and that drug-related intelligence should be integrated with other criminal intelligence where appropriate;

(d) In considering the setting-up of a national drug intelligence unit, recognition should be given to the financial and resource implications in the areas of manpower, equipment and training;

(e) All the countries represented should accept the principle that reliable intelligence was fundamental to successful drug trafficking investigation and should commit themselves to promoting national, regional and international exchanges of intelligence.

F. Working group VI: Tracing of assets and measures to counter money laundering

28. Working group VI recognized the importance of attacking the finances of the drug barons. This was accepted as one of the best ways to succeed in the battle against them. As a result of the discussions, the working group submitted for consideration by the plenary the following draft recommendations:

(a) Any country that had not ratified or acceded to the United Nations Convention against Illicit Trafficking in Narcotics and Psychotropic Substances (E/CONF.82/15 and Corr.2) should do so as soon as possible. Particular attention was drawn to the relevance of:

Article 3, paragraph 1 (b) (i) and (ii) (money laundering);

Article 5, paragraph 7 (reversal of the onus of proof whenever the laws of the country allow);

Article 6 (extradition of money launderers);

Article 7, paragraph 8 (mutual legal assistance);

(b) Each of the countries of the region should actively consider arranging specialized training in ways of countering money laundering within the next 12 months, and countries with experience in that field should examine the possibility of offering assistance with such training;

(c) All countries of the region should consider concluding bilateral or multilateral treaties so as to ensure the exchange of information on international money launderers;

(d) The bank secrecy laws should be eliminated in such matters as drug trafficking, terrorism and other non-fiscal crime whenever allowed by the laws of the country;

(e) Banks should not be the only subjects of anti-laundering legislation; it should also apply to professionals such as brokers, accountants, attorneys and other persons or financial institutions handling funds or property resulting from laundering.

G. Working group VII: Co-operating informants

29. The frequent expressions of solidarity by the public in all countries, including the mass media, with the agencies responsible for eradicating the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and the laundering of the enormous profits it yields were seen to be an indication of public alarm at the magnitude of the problem.

30. There were, however, very few specific cases of such crimes being reported to the police, no doubt because of their special nature and the fear of reprisals. Persons implicated in them nevertheless frequently collaborated actively with the competent authorities, providing information that was of value to law enforcers, and they deserved to be given credit for that in terms of their criminal liability.

31. On the basis of its discussions, the working group submitted for consideration of the plenary the following draft recommendations:

(a) States whose domestic legislation did not already include provisions to that effect might wish to consider incorporating in it the possibility of mitigating penalties and even, in certain circumstances, waiving them completely in the case of individuals accused before the courts who, on their own initiative, provided information leading to substantial seizures of narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances, the breaking up of the organized crime networks involved and the identification of the financial laundering circuits, thus helping to prevent the commission of further crimes;

(b) Where domestic legislation so permitted, such provisions should also be made available in cases where the information led to the same result in a country or countries other than the State in which the informant had been detained.

III. TRAINING IN LATIN AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN: PRIORITIES, FACILITIES AND MODALITIES

32. In the course of the Meeting's consideration of agenda item 3, a description was given of the current training activities of the Division of Narcotic

Drugs, undertaken despite the absence of training posts funded from the regular budget.

33. Since the seventeenth special session of the General Assembly in February 1990, in line with paragraphs 59 and 81 of the Global Programme of Action (see General Assembly resolution S-17/2, annex), the Division of Narcotic Drugs, with the secretariat of the International Narcotics Control Board (INCB) and the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control, had convened a working party with ICPO/Interpol and the Customs Co-operation Council (CCC). Two meetings had been held to draw up a common training strategy for the three organizations.

34. The proposed strategy would include the establishment of a central information bank for drug training matters, to be housed in the Division of Narcotic Drugs, an agreed policy to concentrate on training potential trainers and a requirement for trainees to remain in the post or role for which they had been trained for a period of from two to three years. Other elements included inviting the participation of other international and regional organizations and donor countries, as well as ensuring close evaluation of the results achieved.

35. Several speakers mentioned the urgent need for training centres within the region to provide, in the various languages of the region, drug law enforcement training for countries without established facilities. There were currently no drug control training courses in English in the Caribbean.

36. The observer for the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control stated that the Fund provided training assistance as part of a law enforcement package, which in turn was usually part of a national drug abuse control programme in developing countries. In short, it tended not to look at training in isolation. The observer stressed that, because of that approach, the availability of funds for regional training programmes was extremely limited. The problem was trying to assess what regional programme should be financed. The Fund received requests from organizations such as the Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission (CICAD), ICPO/Interpol and CCC and from the Division of Narcotic Drugs, but had little data to establish whether such requests complemented existing bilateral and multilateral programmes or any assurance that such requests did not duplicate existing programmes.

37. Attention was drawn to the availability of courses in Spanish in Latin America. Several speakers supported the concept of "training trainers", together with that of a common training strategy to be applied by all organizations and donors involved.

38. One speaker suggested that, while training in separate languages was essential, it should not be allowed to jeopardize closer working relations among all countries of the region. Specific training courses to promote better co-operation and understanding across language barriers should be designed.

39. Several speakers linked the fulfilment of the training needs of the region with the proposed role within the Division of Narcotic Drugs of a regional liaison officer for matters relating to HONLEA.

40. Wide support was expressed for the convening of a working meeting to consider further the selection of regional centres for training in drug law enforcement, enlisting the countries of the region in that process.

41. The Division's training programmes and facilities focusing on the identification of drugs of abuse were described, as well as other activities and achievements of its specialized laboratory. Three-month training courses were held at Vienna several times a year. A training centre for laboratory analysis had been established to serve the needs of the region at Buenos Aires. It was recalled that the Division had been providing field drug identification kits, which had proved of practical value to drug law enforcement personnel. In addition to training assistance, the Division was also able to respond to requests for books, material and standard reference samples of drugs under international control.

IV. ACTIVITIES BY UNITED NATIONS PROGRAMMES AND ENTITIES, SPECIALIZED AGENCIES AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS IN THE REGION

42. For its consideration of agenda item 5 on activities by United Nations programmes and entities, specialized agencies and intergovernmental organizations in the region, the Meeting had before it a background document (DND/HONLAC/1990/2). The text of General Assembly resolution S-17/2, containing the Political Declaration and the Global Programme of Action was also circulated.

43. Statements were made by representatives of the Division of Narcotic Drugs, and by observers for the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control, INCB and ICPO/Interpol, outlining their respective activities.

44. The Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs reviewed the work, objectives and organization of the Division. It was pointed out that the Division acted as the secretariat for the Commission on Narcotic Drugs, the major United Nations policy-making body on drug abuse control matters, which was a subsidiary body of the Economic and Social Council. Of its current membership of 40, the following States from Latin America and the Caribbean were members of the Commission: Bahamas, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico and Peru.

45. The Division of Narcotic Drugs also served as secretariat for the subsidiary bodies of the Commission, which together constituted a global network of mechanisms for the co-ordination of Member States' activities at the regional and interregional levels against illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. The regional mechanisms were the Sub-Commission on Illicit Drug Traffic and Related Matters in the Near and Middle East, and the regional meetings of HONLEA for Africa, for Asia and the Pacific, for Europe and for Latin America and the Caribbean.

46. The Division also performed a variety of other functions deriving from the international drug control treaties and specific mandates of the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council and the Commission.

47. The regional meetings of HONLEA, encompassing all the regions of the world, had been recognized as a medium for strengthening co-operation and co-ordination of activities to suppress illicit traffic at the regional and interregional levels. The meetings of HONLEA had become the primary vehicle for regional co-ordination of activities between law enforcement agencies in the fight against illicit traffic. It was increasingly being recognized that the co-ordination of activities to meet the different needs of the various regions could best be effected in close conjunction with Member States.

48. The observer for the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control reported that the Fund had adopted an integrated policy to reduce the supply, demand and traffic of illicit drugs, law enforcement being one of the three areas of its activities. He outlined law enforcement assistance in Latin America and the Caribbean, including improved communications facilities, construction of special buildings and support for specialized training.

49. The observer for INCB outlined the objectives and responsibilities of the Board, composed of 13 members elected in their personal capacity by the Economic and Social Council. He noted that the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances had added to the Board's responsibilities in respect of the control of precursors and essential chemicals.

50. The observer for ICPO/Interpol affirmed that Organization's commitment to international law enforcement efforts, with particular reference to the Caribbean. He made a number of observations and suggestions relating to the solution of problems that arose with telecommunication systems. He extended an invitation for participants to visit the Organization's new headquarters at Lyon.

51. An information document prepared by the secretariat of CICAD was circulated at the Meeting. In it the current membership of CICAD was listed, as follows: Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Bahamas, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Jamaica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, United States of America, Uruguay and Venezuela. Priority problem areas, policy framework and programme budgets were also outlined.

52. Several representatives commented on the work of the various international entities. A number of them had provided the Secretariat with written reports or plans to illustrate co-operative action being undertaken or envisaged in respect of drug law enforcement.

53. Attention was drawn by one speaker to the necessity of ensuring that actions emanating from resolutions of the working group were monitored. To the proposal that the Bureau of the Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, should constitute a monitoring committee, a further proposal was made suggesting that one post in the Division of Narcotic Drugs should be devoted to Latin American and Caribbean matters relating to the HONLEA system. The Director of the Division explained that with present resources that would not be possible. Additional posts were being sought from the General Assembly in the context of the Contingency Fund in order to perform the new tasks entrusted to the Division in the Global Programme of Action (see General Assembly resolution S-17/2, annex) and the United Nations System-Wide Action Plan on drug abuse control, called for by the General Assembly in its resolution 44/141. To obtain resources, the Division needed, as a first step, a clear mandate from the governing bodies.

54. One representative also outlined the difficulties his country was encountering, given the lack of adequate funding to sustain the level of effort needed to combat the drug scourge.

55. The Meeting expressed interest in the idea of establishing a follow-up committee, composed of the Bureau, to monitor the appropriate implementation of the recommendations adopted by the Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean. (See chapter I, section B, draft resolution III.)

V. PROGRESS REPORT ON STEPS TAKEN TO APPLY PROVISIONALLY, RATIFY OR ACCEDE TO THE UNITED NATIONS CONVENTION AGAINST ILLICIT TRAFFIC IN NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES, AS WELL AS THE HARMONIZATION OF NATIONAL LEGISLATION WITH THE PROVISIONS OF THE CONVENTION

56. For its consideration of agenda item 6, the Meeting had before it a document prepared by the Secretariat on the application of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (DND/HONLAC/1990/3). A list reporting on the status of adherence by State parties to the major international drug control treaties was also distributed.

57. Introducing the item, the Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs expressed his satisfaction at the fact that the Convention would enter into force on 11 November 1990, the date on which the requisite 90 days would have elapsed since the deposit by Spain of the twentieth instrument of ratification on 13 August 1990.

58. Of the 25 States that had already become parties to the Convention, 10 were represented at the current Meeting.

59. It would be highly desirable for participants from all countries that had not ratified the Convention to activate the procedures for ensuring the deposit by their respective countries of the necessary instruments of ratification or accession with the Secretary-General.

60. The Division intended to convene a meeting of States parties to the Convention shortly after its entry into force. In principle, the meeting was scheduled to be held in December 1990 at Vienna. It would consider the best ways of facilitating implementation of the measures provided for in the Convention, as well as of establishing mechanisms for contact between the various States parties to facilitate the unimpeded provision of mutual judicial and legal assistance. The Division had been able to provide legal advice to countries that had requested it on the matter of amending their legislations in order to bring them into line with the measures of the Convention, and also on the procedures to be followed for depositing instruments of ratification or accession.

61. In the discussion of that topic, several States parties (Bolivia, Chile, Ecuador, Mexico, Spain and the United States of America) urged countries that had not yet done so to ratify the Convention as soon as possible and stated that they were in the process of adopting bilateral agreements in order to facilitate compliance with its measures.

62. Others (Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Peru and Venezuela) reported that they would soon be able to ratify the Convention because the draft legislation for bringing their respective legal systems into line with it had already been discussed in their congresses. Some other States cited later dates, up to the second half of 1991.

63. One representative expressed the hope that the Convention would soon be ratified by the "consumer" countries. Another representative remarked that the question of differences between "producer" and "consumer" countries had already been settled during the preparatory work period, which had culminated in the adoption of the Convention.

64. The Director of the Division noted that most of the States were simultaneously "producer", "consumer" and "transit" countries and that all States should overcome their difficulties so as to bring their legislations into harmony with the Convention, in order to ensure overall application of its measures as soon as possible.

65. It was noted that, to date, Latin America and the Caribbean was the region with the largest number of ratifying countries. States parties to the Convention represented at the current Meeting were: Bahamas, Bolivia, Canada, Chile, Ecuador, Mexico, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Spain and United States of America.

66. General agreement was expressed at the Meeting on the vital importance of attaining the widest possible application of the Convention in the shortest possible time and, to that end, of encouraging all States in the region that had not yet ratified or acceded to it to accelerate the ratification or accession process.

VI. REPORTS AND STATISTICS OF SIGNIFICANT SEIZURES

67. For its consideration of agenda item 7, on the reporting to the Secretary-General of statistics of significant seizures, the Meeting had before it a background document prepared by the Secretariat on trends in the illicit traffic in the Latin American and Caribbean region (DND/HONLAC/1990/INF.2). The Meeting decided to encourage consideration of the overall situation in respect of illicit drug traffic in the territories of the countries represented.

68. To provide or to supplement information submitted in the country reports received in advance of the Meeting (for a full list, see chap. IX, section E), statements were made by the representatives of Argentina, Aruba, Bahamas, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Cuba, Dominica, Ecuador, Jamaica, Mexico, Peru, Saint Lucia and Spain.

69. Several of the reports provided a broad perspective outlining matters relating to drug abuse as well as to illicit trafficking and underlining, in particular, significant developments and seizures. Most emphasized the need for enhanced and strengthened international collaboration.

70. Several representatives stressed the importance of a rapid exchange of information among operational heads of drug law enforcement services. Many reported on subregional and bilateral agreements designed to reinforce action against illicit drug traffic.

71. A number of representatives identified the major drug-related problems in their countries; most noted that many of the problems and issues were common to all countries. Such problems required common solutions, undertaken in concert on the basis of genuine international collaboration. The initiative of the Division of Narcotic Drugs in intensifying such collaboration in Latin America and the Caribbean was recognized with satisfaction.

72. Several representatives noted, in particular, that their geographical location contributed to their role as transit countries. The inescapable link between the demand for illicit drugs and the expanding illicit drug traffic was mentioned by many representatives. The need for a balanced approach and concerted strategy was stressed anew.

73. The representative of the Secretariat outlined the responsibilities of Member States, of the Division on behalf of the Secretary-General and of INCB, in the matter of statistics on illicit cultivation, production, traffic (as indicated by illicit drug seizures), destruction of seized drugs, demand (number of addicts) and related information, provided for by the international drug control conventions. It was the responsibility of Governments to report to the Division as required and the responsibility of the Division to collate the information in the reports and to publish the results.

74. Only five Governments in Latin America and the Caribbean were submitting to the Division regular reports of the required standard. Few Governments in the region had sent reports of significant seizures in their countries, in spite of the requirement that such reports should be submitted regularly and promptly (within at most one month). Regretfully the reports of seizures in 1989 and in the first five months of 1990 that had been received by the Division did not provide an adequate basis for accurately identifying trends that could be useful to drug law enforcement services. Trends and other conclusions extrapolated from irregularly submitted reports from only a few countries of the region would not only be incomplete but could be misleading. For example, although 1989 had shown an increased total amount of cocaine seized in the region compared with 1988, the precise magnitude of such an increase would only be known upon receipt and analysis of many more reports. Similarly a reported increase in heroin seizures in the region had had to be based on submissions from only five Governments.

75. The commitment and responsibility of each country to report individual seizures and annual statistics was recalled at the Meeting. Mention was also made of a current initiative by the United Nations, ICPO/Interpol and CCC to undertake, through a working group, the rationalization and improvement of the statistical services provided by the three organizations.

76. An additional session was conducted with representatives of Member States to seek means of improving the regular and timely submission of reports on illicit traffic. There was general agreement that each Government should identify one office, which would be given the responsibility for collecting at the national level drug-related statistics from all law enforcement services, organizations and ministries. Such a mechanism would facilitate the reporting of statistics. It would also make it easier for the Division to contact any Government on matters involving drug-related statistics. Participants attending the session on the submission of reports agreed to pursue the matter when they returned to their countries.

77. Because the majority of the reports to be sent to the Division concerned illicit drug seizures and thus originated with drug law enforcement services, it was proposed that the enforcement arm of the national co-ordinating unit should be responsible for forwarding reports direct to the Division. Each representative agreed to pursue the matter, using the guidelines and forms provided. The particular problems surrounding the reporting of seizures made in dependent Territories or departments of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Netherlands and France in the Caribbean were also discussed.

VII. OTHER BUSINESS

78. The Meeting decided unanimously to express special appreciation for the warm hospitality extended by the Government and people of Aruba to all participants, for the preparatory work and support of the National Co-ordinator for the Meeting, and for the leadership of the Chairman and other officers. It also expressed its appreciation of the contributions of the Division of Narcotic Drugs and its Director to the successful outcome of the Meeting.

VIII. ADOPTION OF THE REPORT OF THE MEETING

79. The report was adopted as orally amended at the final plenary meeting on 28 September 1990.

IX. ORGANIZATION OF THE MEETING

80. The Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Latin America and the Caribbean, was held at Oranjestad, Aruba from 24 to 28 September 1990, at the invitation of the Aruban authorities and the Government of the Netherlands.

A. Opening of the Meeting

81. Opening the meeting on behalf of the Secretary-General, the Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs recalled that, in the two years since the Second Meeting, considerable expansion in the seizures of cocaine and heroin in the Americas had been reported, reflecting an escalation in the volume of illicit traffic world-wide. The supply of illicit drugs had to be combated in all areas, and intensified efforts to reduce the illicit demand for drugs. The Division of Narcotic Drugs had been promoting increased emphasis on the reduction of illicit demand as part of a balanced strategy covering all aspects relating to drug abuse and the illicit traffic that fed it. The Division had also promoted the enhancement of regional and interregional co-operation, and a global network of regional co-operation mechanisms was in place, covering all regions of the world. The United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances had been adopted in 1988. It constituted the most far-reaching and effective legal instrument for international drug control.

82. The Convention, which to date had received 25 ratifications or accessions, was to enter into force on 11 November 1990. The Director urged all countries represented at the Third Meeting that had not yet ratified it to expedite the ratification procedure in order to accelerate the universal application of the Convention. That could bring about the reversal of the illicit traffic trends of recent years and make it possible to start the next millennium in a better position to reduce and ultimately eliminate drug abuse.

83. The Minister of Justice of Aruba welcomed all participants on behalf of the Government and people of Aruba. He underlined the fact that the meeting would provide an opportunity for the exchange of ideas and techniques, for discussion of mutual problems and for learning from the experiences of others to help meet the difficulties stemming from drug-related crime. He expressed confidence that the Meeting would contribute to the promotion of the United Nations' aims and objectives in combating drug abuse, an epidemic that destroyed citizens, undermined institutions and endangered domestic tranquillity. He stressed the need to use modern technology to combat not only the symptoms but also the causes of drug abuse. Noting that participants represented a cross-section of many cultures, he urged increased co-operation through the free exchange of information and through unification in a partnership stretching across the oceans to prevent and combat drug abuse and suppress illicit drug traffic.

84. The Commissioner of Police of Aruba, also speaking at the opening meeting, said that, as the highest police authority of the island, responsible for its drug control laws, he had to acknowledge that the problem was of such magnitude that it required international collaboration. While Aruba was mainly used for transit, the local abuse of drugs could not be ignored. Another problem shared with other participating Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies was the lack of adequate resources, including technical equipment, trained staff and sufficient funding. He said Aruba wholeheartedly supported the United Nations initiatives of seeking practical workable solutions to common problems. He called for unity and international co-operation in taking action against the common enemy of drug abuse and illicit traffic.

B. Attendance

85. The following States members of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean were represented: Argentina, Bahamas, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Dominica, Ecuador, France, Guatemala, Jamaica, Mexico, Netherlands, Paraguay, Peru, Saint Lucia, Spain, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America, Uruguay and Venezuela.

86. The following associate members were represented: Aruba, the British Virgin Islands and the Cayman Islands.

87. INCB and the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control were represented as observers. ICPO/Interpol was also represented as observer.

88. The Division of Narcotic Drugs served as the secretariat of the Meeting.

I. MATTERS CALLING FOR ACTION BY THE COMMISSION ON NARCOTIC DRUGS OR BROUGHT TO ITS ATTENTION

A. Draft resolutions to be recommended by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs for adoption by the Economic and Social Council

1. The Fifteenth Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies (HONLEA), Asia and the Pacific, recommends to the Commission on Narcotic Drugs the approval of the following draft resolutions for adoption by the Economic and Social Council:

DRAFT RESOLUTION I

Appointment of a full-time liaison officer for the co-ordination of drug-control activities in Asia and the Pacific*

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs

Recommends to the Economic and Social Council the adoption of the following draft resolution:

"The Economic and Social Council,

"Recognizing the recent upsurge in the involvement of nationals from other regions, often using false travel documents, in illicit traffic in heroin from Asia and the Pacific,

"Aware that effective countermeasures taken by national authorities and law enforcement agencies would lead to the emergence of new trends in illicit trafficking,

"Stressing the need for co-ordination of efforts by all States in Asia and the Pacific in response to such new trends,

"Aware of the so-called 'ballooning effect', whereby illicit traffickers shift their operations to points where law enforcement offers less resistance,

"Noting the important role of regional meetings of heads of national drug law enforcement agencies in increasing the level of awareness and of co-ordination among States and in promoting agreement on measures to be taken by States with the support of the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the Secretariat,

"Requests the Secretary-General to give priority to appointing, as a matter of urgency, a full-time liaison officer for activities in Asia and the Pacific, who would be responsible to the Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the Secretariat and whose post would be financed from the regular budget, to enable the Division to provide fully and rapidly all assistance requested by meetings of heads of national drug law enforcement agencies and supported by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs."

*See paragraph 69 below.

DRAFT RESOLUTION II

Establishment of a directory of national drug law enforcement contact points*

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs

Recommends to the Economic and Social Council the adoption of the following draft resolution:

"The Economic and Social Council,

"Mindful of the need for a global information system on drug-related matters to serve the needs of all States, organizations and agencies working to eliminate the illicit drug scourge,

"Noting the support for such a system expressed by the General Assembly in the Global Programme of Action contained in its resolution S-17/2, annex, of 23 February 1990,

"1. Draws attention to the often repeated calls at various international and regional forums 1/ for a global information system on drug-related matters to be urgently set up and to be provided with adequate staff and with the necessary expertise, equipment and resources for prompt operational effectiveness, expansion and improvement as appropriate;

"2. Notes the requests made by the Fifteenth Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Asia and the Pacific, 2/ held at Beijing from 15 to 19 October 1990, for the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the Secretariat to compile and to maintain a directory of national drug law enforcement and other contact points to improve the effectiveness of international co-operation;

"3. Urges the Secretary-General to take the necessary steps to establish such a directory as a regular activity of the United Nations drug control units.

"1/ See E/1990/39, para. 163 (f).

"2/ E/CN.7/1991/4, para. 30 (c)."

B. Draft resolution for adoption by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs

2. The Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, recommends to the Commission on Narcotic Drugs the adoption of the following draft resolution:

*See paragraph 69 below.

DRAFT RESOLUTION

Development and implementation of an international training strategy as a matter of urgency*

The Commission on Narcotic Drugs,

Recalling the repeated attention drawn to the need to co-ordinate, at a central point, training programmes in the field of drug law enforcement, as most recently expressed in the Global Programme of Action adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution S-17/2, annex, of 23 February 1990.

1. Applauds the initiative taken by the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the Secretariat, in conjunction with the secretariat of the International Narcotics Control Board and the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control and in co-operation with the secretariats of the International Criminal Police Organization and the Customs Co-operation Council;

2. Recognizes the particular value of establishing a central information system, preferably at the Division of Narcotic Drugs, for the maintenance of comprehensive global data on such training;

3. Strongly supports the participation of organizations offering training at the regional or subregional level and donor countries providing bilateral training to other countries in the formulation and implementation of an international training strategy, in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 1988/12 of 25 May 1988;

4. Notes the interest in the international training strategy manifested by such organizations at the Fifteenth Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Asia and the Pacific, held at Beijing from 15 to 19 October 1990;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to give a high priority to the ongoing development of the international training strategy and to provide, as a matter of urgency, adequate resources for its implementation.

C. Venue of the Sixteenth Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Asia and the Pacific

3. The Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, draws the attention of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs to the offer by the Government of Australia to act as host to the Sixteenth Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies (HONLEA), Asia and the Pacific, in 1991.

II. CURRENT TRENDS IN ILLICIT DRUG TRAFFIC IN ASIA AND THE PACIFIC: REPORTING ON STATISTICS OF SIGNIFICANT SEIZURES TO THE DIVISION OF NARCOTIC DRUGS OF THE SECRETARIAT

4. At its 2nd meeting, on 15 October 1990, the Meeting considered agenda item 3, on current trends in illicit drug traffic in Asia and the Pacific. It had before it a conference room paper (DND/HONLAP/1990/CRP.7) on the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances in Asia and the Pacific in the period 1989-1990. The conference room paper contained tables and annexes prepared by the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the Secretariat based on the annual reports questionnaire and on reports of significant seizures of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances submitted by Governments to the Secretary-General, in compliance with provisions of the international drug control treaties.

5. In introducing agenda item 3, the Chief of the Suppression of Illicit Traffic Section of the Division of Narcotic Drugs described some of the significant trends in illicit traffic based on the annual reports and reports of significant seizures submitted by Governments to the Division. He urged participants to make a special effort to ensure that their Governments communicated to the Division annual reports, as well as significant cases involving illicit traffic. In order to be in a better position to adopt and implement countermeasures at the regional level and to deal with transborder illicit traffic in narcotic drugs, psychotropic substances and essential chemicals, it was essential to have a complete understanding of the trends at the regional level.

6. Many participants described the most recent trends and developments in illicit traffic in their countries. Several referred to the reports on the illicit traffic situation that they had submitted to the Secretariat, which were available as conference room papers. There was general agreement that Asia and the Pacific continued to be faced with a growing threat from the twin problems of drug abuse and illicit traffic. The region remained a major source of opiates, particularly from south-east Asia, and of cannabis, in addition to being a major consumption area for those products. There was a significant and growing illicit market in the region for psychotropic substances, particularly amphetamines, precursors and essential chemicals. Some of those substances were being illicitly produced within the region. Several representatives reported record seizures, particularly of opiates and cannabis, and the arrest and prosecution of an increased number of persons for drug-related offences. Some representatives, referring to recent seizures of cocaine, drew attention to the threat that illicit cocaine traffic posed to the region.

7. Several participants said that their countries continued to be particularly affected by illicit traffic in heroin originating from the Golden Triangle.* The Meeting was informed that, as a result of effective law enforcement action, the number of seizures had increased significantly in India; the total volume of seized drugs, however, had decreased significantly. There was also a tendency for illicit traffickers to avoid using India as a transit route and to use the Balkan route to Europe instead. Japan was increasingly being used as a transit point for illicit heroin from south-east Asia destined for Europe and the United States of America. The prices and availability of heroin in Australia remained stable. The Lao People's Democratic Republic, Myanmar and Nepal reported increased illicit traffic in heroin in their border areas.

8. Cannabis, in various forms, continued to be one of the most abused drugs in several countries and areas of Asia and the Pacific. Cannabis herb found in the illicit market in Hong Kong originated in the Philippines and Thailand, and cannabis resin was found to come from Nepal and Pakistan. Illicit consignments of cannabis from the Philippines destined for China, Guam, Hong Kong, Japan, Malaysia, the United States and Western Europe had been intercepted by the Philippine authorities.

9. Most participants referred to the increasing demand for stimulants, particularly amphetamines. In Australia, illicit traffic in amphetamines, one of the most commonly abused drugs, continued to be dominated by motorcycle gangs. Methamphetamines, under different brand names, continued to be abused in several countries, particularly in Japan, the Philippines and the Republic of Korea. Most of the illicit production was reported to have shifted from the Republic of Korea to Taiwan Province of China; Japan reported seizures of amphetamines from China, the Republic of Korea and Taiwan Province of China. It was reported that the bulk of the methamphetamines found on the illicit market in the Philippines had been illicitly imported from Hong Kong and Taiwan Province of China. Several clandestine laboratories for the manufacture of methamphetamine hydrochloride had been detected and seized in the area of Metro-Manila in the period 1989-1990. Methaqualone, illicitly manufactured primarily at Bombay, was being shipped to the illicit market in South Africa through east African States. In New Zealand, motorcycle gangs were reported to be primarily involved in the distribution of 3,4-methylenedioxymethamphetamine (MDMA), commonly known as "ecstacy".

10. Several participants referred to the urgent need to control precursors and essential chemicals. The Meeting was informed that seizures were increasingly being made of imported precursors and essential chemicals used for the illicit manufacture of methamphetamines, particularly ephedrine hydrochloride, in the Republic of Korea. New Zealand was amending its legislation to require notification for the movement of precursor chemicals.

11. Australia and Japan reported increased seizures of cocaine. Cocaine prices in Australia, however, had dropped to a level that made cocaine competitive with heroin on the illicit market. Increased abuse of cocaine was reported in Japan; illicit drug syndicates based in Colombia were turning to the illicit market in Japan because of successful law enforcement activities in the United States and the pharmacological similarity between cocaine and methamphetamine, the predominant drug of abuse in Japan.

12. Most participants who spoke on item 3 informed the meeting of the prevalent modus operandi adopted by illicit traffickers. Several referred to the increasing involvement of Nigerian nationals as couriers in illicit traffic in heroin from the region to Africa and Western Europe. India and Thailand continued to be used as transit points by such couriers; a new development was the use of Hong Kong and Malaysia as transit points. It was reported that whereas, in 1989, 13 African couriers had been arrested in Thailand, in the first 10 months of 1990, 89 had been arrested, resulting in the seizure of about 199 kg of heroin. According to information obtained from the couriers, they had been paid about $US 1,000 per trip and had frequently changed their routes to avoid detection at major international airports. Six couriers arrested in Malaysia in August 1990 had been carrying a total of 2.7 kg of heroin on their persons and 0.8 kg in their shoes. Seventeen Nigerians had been arrested in Hong Kong in 1989 for possession of heroin from both south-east and south-west Asia that was destined for Europe and North America. Some representatives appealed to African Governments, through the offices of the Secretary-General, to increase their co-operation in dealing with the problem. The Meeting was informed that the Third Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies (HONLEA), Africa, held at Cairo from 4 to 8 June 1990, had recommended that the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, should consider examining, from the perspective of drug-producing countries, the prevalent use by African couriers of false travel documents and should be more stringent in issuing visas (E/CN.7/1991/2, paragraph 16).

13. Several speakers pointed to the increased vulnerability of their countries to transit traffic in illicit drugs, particularly heroin from the Golden Triangle. The Meeting was informed of the alarming scale of transit traffic in heroin in south-west China, particularly in Yunnan Province, which shared its borders with countries of the Golden Triangle. Heroin from the Golden Triangle was moving through Guangdong Province of China to Hong Kong and Macau, where it was being redistributed to other parts of the world. The involvement of criminal drug syndicates in illicit heroin traffic had coincided with the opening of borders in China and the increased number of foreign visitors to that country, including ethnic Chinese from Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan Province of China. Incidents of illicit drug trafficking had increased from 563 in 1989 to 2,216 in the first half of 1990; the quantity of drugs seized on the illicit market had also increased significantly. Arms, ammunition and communications equipment, as well as large sums of cash, had been seized from illicit traffickers. Transit traffic had contributed to a re-emergence of or increase in drug abuse, particularly in the areas bordering the opium-producing countries. Sri Lanka, for example, which had no heroin dependency in 1980, was reported to have a drug-dependent population of over 35,000 as a result of being used as a transit point for heroin destined for illicit markets in Asia and Europe. The South Pacific States and New Zealand were also reportedly being used as transit points by illicit drug traffickers.

14. Several participants reported on the initiatives taken by their Governments in launching programmes aimed at strengthening activities for demand reduction and the treatment and rehabilitation of drug abusers and in promoting anti-drug campaigns.

15. Some participants referred to the growing involvement of organized crime syndicates, such as the Yakuza in Japan, in the illicit drug traffic. Illicit traffic in methamphetamines provided funds to the Yakuza to support its other criminal activities. Illicit traffic in cannabis was the second largest money-making operation of the Yakuza. Similarly, the Meeting was informed that investigations made over the preceding 10 years had established that there were definite links between illicit heroin traffic and Tamil terrorist organizations in Sri Lanka.

16. The Meeting was informed of initiatives and efforts to strengthen co-ordinated action at the national, regional and international levels. New penal provisions had been adopted in several countries or areas in conformity with the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (E/CONF.82/15 and Corr.2). For example, new legislation had been introduced in Hong Kong to provide for the tracing and confiscation of the proceeds of illicit drug trafficking and to make money laundering an offence.

17. The observer for the Customs Co-operation Council (CCC) described the Central Information System, an information pool on different customs offences, including notified methods of drug smuggling, which contained information that was available to all members of CCC.

18. Reports on illicit traffic in Australia, Bhutan, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, China, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Malaysia, Maldives, Myanmar, Nepal, New Zealand, Philippines, Republic of Korea, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Thailand and United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland were presented to the Meeting as conference room papers (DND/HONLAP/1990/CRP.3-6 and CRP.8-24).

19. The Chief of the Suppression of Illicit Traffic Section of the Division of Narcotic Drugs informed the Meeting of the current status of reports on statistics of drug seizures and information related to illicit drug traffic communicated to the Secretary-General and received by the Division. Following a discussion on ways of improving the reporting procedures, it was agreed that greater effort should be made at the national level to provide the Secretary-General with the information required from parties to the international drug control treaties. The regional meetings of heads of national drug law enforcement agencies had an important role to play in that matter.

III. CONSIDERATION OF URGENT MATTERS OR SPECIFIC TOPICS BY WORKING GROUPS

20. At the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th meetings of the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, working groups selected and discussed, in an informal manner, urgent issues facing drug law enforcement agencies in the region with a view to adopting effective countermeasures. Of the eight issues considered, three were related to illicit drug traffic in the region, one to illicit cultivation of the opium poppy, three to organizational and operational methods and strategies and one to demand reduction. Following the in-depth discussion of those issues, which was characterized by a frank exchange of information and opinions, each working group reported to the Meeting its conclusions and practical measures for consideration by the Meeting.

21. The Meeting endorsed the measures recommended by the working groups on the various issues, which are presented below.

A. Issue 1: Illicit heroin traffic in Asia and the Pacific: the current situation and emerging trends

22. The working group on issue 1, illicit heroin traffic in Asia and the Pacific, focused its attention on the situation as of October 1990 and on how the situation was expected to develop in 1991. It agreed on the following points:

(a) The illicit production of heroin was on the increase in the Golden Triangle and in the Golden Crescent;*

(b) While the quantity of heroin seized was increasing, bulk shipments remained largely undetected;

*An area comprising parts of Afghanistan, the Islamic Republic of Iran and Pakistan.

(c) Major illicit traffickers were turning more frequently to the practice of pressing heroin into bricks, which made concealment of large quantities easier;

(d) Ethnic Chinese continued to dominate the illicit heroin traffic;

(e) Heroin No. 4 continued to be the most common type found in the illicit traffic.

23. Following an extensive discussion on strategies and initiatives to combat illicit traffic in heroin in the region, the following measures were recommended by the working group on issue 1 for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) States should strictly implement the relevant provisions of the international drug control treaties, in particular, the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances;

(b) Closer co-ordination and links should be established between the Division of Narcotic Drugs, the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO/Interpol) and CCC regarding illicit drug trafficking;

(c) All States represented at the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, should endeavour to develop mutual assistance treaties with one another;

(d) All States should establish facilities to permit the timely and accurate exchange of operational intelligence;

(e) Intelligence should be developed to identify major illicit heroin traffickers and their associates, modus operandi and assets;

(f) States currently experimenting with new narcotics detection techniques should be encouraged to continue with such research;

(g) Basic skill training in techniques for investigating illicit drug trafficking offences should be provided to States that did not have the necessary training facilities or expertise;

(h) States that had not done so should be encouraged to develop conspiracy laws;

(i) Each State represented at the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, should report to the Sixteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, in 1991 on measures adopted to improve the situation in the intervening period, taking into account the measures contained in subparagraphs 23 (a)-(h) above;

(j) The Division of Narcotic Drugs should report to the Sixteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, on the implementation of all measures recommended by the working groups on the various issues that involved action to be taken by the Secretary-General.

B. Issue 2: The involvement of Africans, particularly Nigerians, as couriers in the illicit traffic in heroin

24. The working group on issue 2 agreed that Africans, particularly Nigerians, were increasingly becoming involved as couriers in illicit traffic in heroin from Asia. The illicit activities of those couriers had adversely affected the situation in Bangladesh, India, Malaysia, Thailand and Sri Lanka.

25. A large number of the couriers used forged passports and visas. Often more than one passport was used in different stages of a drug run. Most Nigerian couriers carried large sums of foreign currency, particularly United States dollars, for purchasing narcotic drugs and for financing their operations.

26. While narcotic drugs were often found concealed in accompanied luggage, the most common modus operandi adopted by such couriers was body concealment. The couriers would travel in large numbers in hope that even if a few of them were intercepted, others would get through with sufficient quantities of heroin. To avoid detection, circuitous routes were used, Amsterdam and Paris being the two favourite transit points in Europe. Co-ordinators of such illicit trafficking activities had been exposed in India and Thailand; students were also occasionally being used as couriers. The view was expressed that no respite in the recruitment of such couriers was expected in the near future, particularly in populous African countries such as Nigeria. Unfavourable economic circumstances, particularly the rampant unemployment in several African countries, made the lure of enormous profits from illicit drug trafficking irresistible. A working knowledge of English was the only prerequisite.

27. The following measures at the national level were recommended by the working group on issue 2 for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) The consular missions of States affected by illicit traffic in heroin should be directed by their Governments to be more stringent in issuing visas, particularly to persons from States whose nationals were known to be frequently involved as couriers in illicit traffic in heroin; visas should be granted to suspects only after they had been carefully screened and after their antecedents had been found to be beyond doubt;

(b) Each State should ensure stricter checks of suspected couriers at entry and exit points. Wherever possible, body X-ray machines should be used. States, particularly those on transit routes, might wish to utilize urine-testing equipment, such as the enzyme multiplied immunoassay technique (EMIT) equipment used by Hong Kong customs, which had reported a success rate of 80-90 per cent;

(c) Comprehensive and up-to-date profiles of all suspected African couriers should be maintained. Whenever appropriate and feasible, all suspected persons should be placed under surveillance from the time of their entry into a country until their departure;

(d) All convicted drug couriers should be deported after being sentenced. Their names, together with their photographs and fingerprints, should be provided to the consular missions of the States concerned so that that informaton might be taken into consideration when granting visas;

(e) The embassies of persons arrested for illicit drug traffic should be kept informed of action taken against those persons.

28. The following measures at the regional level were recommended for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) The particulars of each courier involved in illicit traffic in heroin should be conveyed to all States in Asia and the Pacific. For that purpose, contact persons should be appointed in all States in the region; their names, addresses and telephone, telefax and telex numbers should be exchanged at the regional level;

(b) The movement of suspected drug couriers, as well as information regarding their itineraries, should be conveyed without delay to all States concerned.

(c) Law enforcement agencies should exchange information on new modus operandi of drug concealment. Wherever possible, photographs on the subject should be made available to the law enforcement agencies concerned.

29. The following measures at the international level were recommended for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) The Division of Narcotic Drugs should be requested to assist the African States concerned in adopting stricter legal, executive and administrative measures that would help to curtail the use of their nationals as couriers in illicit traffic in heroin from Asia;

(b) The Division of Narcotic Drugs should, in collaboration with ICPO/Interpol and CCC, identify appropriate enforcement strategies to curtail the use of Africans as couriers in illicit traffic in heroin from Asia;

(c) The Division of Narcotic Drugs should be requested to inform the Fourth Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies, Africa, of action taken by the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, in response to a request by the Third Meeting of HONLEA, Africa, concerning the use of African nationals as couriers in illicit traffic in heroin (E/CN.7/1991/2, paragraph 16);

(d) ICPO/Interpol and CCC should give increased attention to the measures contained in subparagraph 29 (b) and (c) above in their regular weekly and fortnightly publications and bulletins.

C. Issue 3: Co-ordination of policies and programmes at the national level; advantages to, and problems to overcome in, setting up a national co-ordinating unit or units

30. The working group on issue 3, co-ordination of policies and programmes at the national level, had an in-depth discussion on various aspects of co-ordination, particularly problems encountered in the co-ordination of drug law enforcement agencies and programmes.

31. The working group recognized that although overlapping areas of responsibility between drug law enforcement agencies and the competition resulting therefrom could lead to reduced corruption, it was important to make optimal use of the resources available to such agencies and to avoid inter-agency conflicts and duplication of efforts.

32. The following measures were recommended by the working group on issue 3 for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) All drug law enforcement agencies should be represented on national units responsible for overall co-ordination of drug control measures at the policy-making level;

(b) Each State or territory should consider adopting appropriate measures to avoid confusion and duplication of efforts in the field of drug law enforcement and to promote the most effective use of resources. Such measures might include:

(i) Establishment of a centralized intelligence unit;

(ii) Agreement between drug law enforcement agencies on a clear demarcation of areas of responsibility;

(iii) Establishment of a mechanism to co-ordinate activities of drug law enforcement agencies in areas where demarcation was not regulated;

(c) Each State or territory in the region should notify the Division of Narcotic Drugs of the particulars of drug co-ordinating bodies, contact points and the scope of their responsibilities. The Division should compile that information in a directory for circulation;

(d) The implementation of the measures set out in subparagraphs 32 (a), (b) and (c) and the usefulness of the directory should be reviewed at the Sixteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, in 1991.

D. Issue 4: Illicit traffic in psychotropic substances in Asia and the Pacific: the current situation and emerging trends

33. The working group on issue 4 reviewed the current situation and emerging trends in illicit traffic in psychotropic substances in Asia and the Pacific.

34. All participants in the discussion on issue 4 drew attention to the increase in illicit traffic in methamphetamines. Abuse in new kinds of substances such as pemoline and methamphetamine in tablet form were reported in Brunei Darussalam and Thailand. No major abuse of psychotropic substances was reported in China, Indonesia and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Concern was expressed concerning the illicit flow to Japan and the Republic of Korea of methamphetamines manufactured in other countries. The number of drug abusers had decreased in both those countries. Methamphetamine abuse was reported to be on the rise in the Philippines, where it was being smuggled from other countries. The working group on issue 4 was informed that the authorities of the USSR were willing to share with States in Asia and the Pacific their experience in dealing with problems related to the abuse of cannabis and opium. The working group concluded that States in the region would be faced with an increase in illicit traffic in, and abuse of, psychotropic substances in the near future.

35. The following measures were recommended by the working group on issue 4 for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) Preventive action should be taken to stem the increasing illicit traffic in methamphetamines in Asia and the Pacific;

(b) The exchange of information between States in the region concerning illicit traffic in psychotropic substances should be enhanced;

(c) Contact points for co-ordinating measures against illicit traffic in psychotropic substances should be established in each State or territory in the region; their names and addresses should be communicated periodically to the Division of Narcotic Drugs for inclusion in an updated publication;

(d) The monitoring of ephedrine, the main precursor for amphetamine, should be strengthened.

E. Issue 5: Monitoring precursors and essential chemicals used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances

36. The working group on issue 5 emphasized the need to control precursors and essential chemicals used for the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. It recognized that there could be some difficulties in instituting stringent control of such precursors and essential chemicals; it invited each Government to institute the strictest control possible.

37. The working group discussed the provisions of article 12 of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, entitled "Substances frequently used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs or psychotropic substances", and considered practical measures to implement them.

38. The working group on issue 5 recommended the following measures for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) States that had not done so should ratify the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances without delay and should fully implement all its provisions, in particular those of article 12;

(b) All States, whether parties or non-parties to the Convention should co-operate with one another and share information relating to the manufacture and movement of precursors used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances;

(c) States that were not parties to the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances should adopt and implement appropriate measures, in conformity with the provisions of article 12 of that Convention, in the form of legislation or otherwise, for the effective control of substances frequently used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances at the manufacturing, importation or exportation stages;

(d) Each State should establish a programme aimed at enlisting the voluntary reporting of the movement of precursors to the relevant authorities, where such reporting was not required by law;

(e) Each State should establish an authority responsible for the control of precursors at the national level that should communicate regularly with the relevant drug law enforcement agencies to ensure their effective involvement in the control of precursors and essential chemicals used in the illicit manufacture of drugs and substances of abuse; the name and address of that authority should be communicated to the Division of Narcotic Drugs for inclusion in a directory of national contact points.

F. Issue 6: Assessing the extent of illicit opium cultivation; effective countermeasures to be adopted by Governments and law enforcement agencies

39. The working group on issue 6, entitled "Assessing the extent of illicit opium cultivation; effective countermeasures to be adopted by Governments and law enforcement agencies", focused its discussion on illicit opium cultivation in China, the Philippines, Thailand and the USSR and on programmes undertaken in those countries for the detection of illicit opium cultivation and for crop replacement.

40. The working group observed that there was little or no information on the extent of illicit opium cultivation in some States in the region. The two avenues open for co-operation between States in the region included, first, the development and application of methods and techniques for the detection of illicit opium cultivation and, secondly, crop replacement programmes. Thailand was prepared to co-operate in those areas with the Lao People's Democratic Republic and Myanmar. The USSR had developed advanced techniques for detecting illicit opium cultivation and was prepared to co-operate with other States in that area. The first stage of the USSR scientific programme would be completed in 1991 and the technology would then be available to other States. China had acquired some expertise in crop replacement programmes following the successful implementation of such programmes in Yunnan Province. The view was expressed that programmes similar to those implemented in Yunnan Province could be carried out in Myanmar.

41. The working group concluded that there was a need for information to be shared on illicit opium cultivation so that an assessment could be made of the quantity of illicit narcotic drugs that could be produced annually in the region. It welcomed the possibilities for co-operation between States of the region in the development of methods and techniques for detecting illicit opium cultivation and of crop replacement programmes. The representatives of China and Thailand and the observer for the USSR stated that their Governments were ready to co-operate in those areas with States in the region.

42. The working group on issue 6 recommended the following measures for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) States in the region should provide complete information on illicit opium cultivation within their borders;

(b) States in the region should develop crop replacement programmes and methods for detecting illicit opium cultivation. They should avail themselves of assistance from States that had required experience in those areas, such as States with advanced methods and programmes that had been successfully applied;

(c) The representatives of China, the Lao People's Democratic Republic, Myanmar and Thailand should draft a proposal for a programme of action on ways of dealing with illicit opium cultivation, to be subsequently implemented with the assistance of the Division of Narcotic Drugs.

G. Issue 7: Measures to counter money laundering and to trace and confiscate assets derived from illicit traffic

43. The working group on issue 7 discussed measures to counter money laundering and to trace and confiscate assets derived from illicit traffic. It considered the removal of profits and economic incentives from illicit drug traffic to be as important as the actual seizure of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances on the illicit market. Participants in the working group exchanged information on the legislation in force in their countries for the tracing, seizure and confiscation of assets derived from illicit drug trafficking. Specific examples of money laundering were provided by several representatives. The view was expressed that it was difficult for some developing countries of Asia and the Pacific to enter into bilateral arrangements for tracing assets because of the divergent legal practice, investment policies, tax laws and banking practice in different States in the region.

44. The working group on issue 7 recommended the following measures for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) All States should be encouraged to develop legislation for the tracing and confiscation of assets derived from illicit traffic;

(b) States should be encouraged to enter into bilateral agreements to facilitate the tracing and confiscation of assets derived from illicit traffic;

(c) States that had adopted legislation for the tracing and confiscation of assets should provide details on such legislation and on problems encountered in their implementation to States contemplating the enactment of similar legislation, at their request;

(d) States that had undertaken studies on money-laundering schemes should disseminate their findings through the Division of Narcotic Drugs or some similar vehicle;

(e) The monitoring of cash movements or financial transactions between States should be carried out using appropriate bilateral arrangements;

(f) Intelligence on money-laundering activities should continue to be exchanged via existing channels;

(g) Asset-tracing and money-laundering investigations were complex, specialized, labour-intensive and time-consuming. States that had developed training capabilities in such investigative techniques should, subject to suitable financial arrangements, provide training to other States upon request.

H. Issue 8: Demand reduction

45. The working group on issue 8, demand reduction, was shown a video on the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) programme of New Zealand.

46. Following a discussion on demand reduction, the working group on issue 7 recommended the following measures for consideration by the Meeting:

(a) Governments should provide education programmes targeting children and juveniles, particularly those aged 9-12, to prepare them against the dangers of misusing and abusing illicit drugs;

(b) Programmes for other age groups vulnerable to drug abuse, for example, early school leavers, should be established;

(c) Governments should provide rehabilitation centres with appropriate resources; such centres should be under the authority and responsibility of agencies other than law enforcement agencies, such as public health services;

(d) Drug abuse should be treated as a health problem and the criminal justice system should play an important role in making treatment and rehabilitation compulsory for drug abusers. Arresting the offender should be considered an important initial step in that process;

(e) Governments should regard methadone maintenance programmes as a treatment option worth considering with a view to meeting the demand of known abusers for illicit drugs and removing them from the criminal mainstream;

(f) Law enforcement agencies should play an important role in making politicians aware that there are no quick or easy solutions to the drug problem. A whole range of treatment options, such as methadone maintenance programmes, and preventive education schemes should be elaborated and should be made available to counter the problem of drug abuse;

(g) Governments should consider providing methadone maintenance programmes for drug abusers who had completed compulsory or voluntary treatment, as part of a rehabilitation programme that would help them to become useful members of society.

47. One representative expressed his reservation regarding the effectiveness of the methadone maintenance programmes mentioned in subparagraph 46 (e) above.

IV. TRAININC IN ASIA AND THE PACIFIC: PRIORITIES, FACILITIES AND MODALITIES

48. In introducing agenda item 5, entitled "Training in Asia and the Pacific: priorities, facilities and modalities", the Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs informed the Meeting of the training activities of the Division in the field of drug law enforcement. He stated that, pursuant to Economic and Social Council resolution 1988/12, adopted by the Council on the recommendation of the Division of Narcotic Drugs at its tenth special session, the Division was drawing up a long-term international drug law enforcement training strategy in collaboration with other international and regional agencies, principally ICPO/Interpol and CCC, in order to avoid duplication of efforts and to meet the training needs of the various regions in a cost-effective manner. He invited participants to provide guidelines to the Division in drawing up the training strategy by indicating the priorities for training in Asia and the Pacific. The Director informed the Meeting that an updated version of the United Nations drug law enforcement training manual would be completed in 1990. The Division was publishing biannually a calendar of drug law enforcement training events and had established a roster of international, regional and national agencies with expertise and training capabilities. The capability of the Division to provide training, which had suffered severely from resource shortages in the preceding years, had been reinforced following the appointment in the Division of a technical adviser specialized in drug law enforcement training whose post was being funded by the Government of France.

49. With regard to the long-term international drug law enforcement training strategy, several participants expressed support for the initiatives undertaken to co-ordinate training programmes at the regional and international levels and to avoid duplication of efforts. Others expressed support for the training of trainers as a cost-effective approach. The Meeting was informed of efforts in Malaysia to provide training to personnel of non-drug-related agencies who were stationed at border points, such as personnel in fisheries and in revenue and agricultural departments, with a view to enhancing illicit drug detection.

50. All participants who spoke on item 5 emphasized the important role of drug law enforcement training in the suppression of illicit drug trafficking and in demand reduction. Effectiveness depended largely on the expertise of personnel. Training in updated drug law enforcement techniques was a matter that had been given high priority in many countries of the region, particularly in China, which had only begun to regard drug law enforcement as an area of expertise following an upsurge in illicit traffic. It was agreed that training in Asia and the Pacific should focus on the countries and areas most affected by illicit drug trafficking, such as the Golden Triangle and the Golden Crescent. It was suggested that, in developing the long-term training strategy, the feasibility of establishing one or more training centres in Asia and the Pacific should be taken into account. China was prepared to act as host to such a training centre. The Meeting was informed of a recommendation of the Asian Regional Drug Law Enforcement Symposium, held at Beijing in October 1989, to establish a training centre in the region. That recommendation was subsequently endorsed by the General Assembly of ICPO/Interpol at its fifty-eighth session, held at Lyon from 27 November to 1 December 1989. The support of the Division of Narcotic Drugs and the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control (UNFDAC) was necessary to achieve that goal. The Meeting was informed that since 1980, 200 drug law enforcement officers from six States members of the Association of south-east Asian Nations (ASEAN) had been trained at the ASEAN Training Centre on Narcotics Law Enforcement at Bangkok.

51. The observer for CCC informed the Meeting of the training activities of his organization based on the training-of-trainers approach. He referred to a series of training modules developed by CCC and seminars and fellowships offered for training in specialized areas of customs enforcement. The observer for ICPO/Interpol informed the Meeting that his organization was examining the financial implications of establishing a training centre in Asia for training police officers in the suppression of illicit drugs.

52. Several participants described the training activities undertaken by their national drug law enforcement agencies and outlined their involvement in training programmes at the regional and international levels. The Meeting was informed of national training policies and training programmes undertaken or planned by the Governments of Australia, Canada, France, Japan and the United Kingdom that could assist developing countries in the region in improving the capabilities of their drug law enforcement personnel. The observers for ASEAN and for the Colombo Plan Bureau informed the Meeting of their training programmes in the region. Several participants stated that, due to limited resources, the training thus provided would have to be tailored to meet the most urgent needs of the requesting State. Regarding assistance in training provided to developing countries, the Meeting was informed of a special police training programme in drug law enforcement that would be initiated by States members of the European Economic Community whereby each member State would sponsor participants from specific developing countries.

53. Several participants stated that because many developing countries lacked the expertise necessary to effectively implement the novel provisions of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, special training programmes, particularly in the tracing, freezing and confiscation of assets, controlled delivery, and mutual legal assistance, should be organized at the regional or subregional level in the near future. States with experience in implementing specific provisions of the Convention should be requested to assist others in doing so by providing them with the appropriate training. The Meeting was informed that the Drug Advisory Programme of the Colombo Plan Bureau would be carrying out, in collaboration with the Division of Narcotic Drugs, training projects with a view to assisting States in the region in implementing specific provisions of the Convention.

54. With regard to the specific training needs of the Pacific islands, the meeting was informed of a varied programme of courses held and planned by the police and customs services of Australia. There was widespread support among the participants for the adoption of a common training strategy by all involved in drug enforcement training, and the urgent need for it to be developed was underlined.

V. REPORTS ON THE ACTIVITIES OF UNITED NATIONS ENTITIES AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS IN THE REGION

55. For its consideration of agenda item 6, on reports on the activities of United Nations entities and non-governmental organizations in the region, the Meeting had before it a background paper prepared by the Division of Narcotic Drugs (DND/HONLAP/1990/2).

56. The Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs informed the Meeting of the activities of the Division in the region, particularly those aimed at assisting Governments and specialized agencies in implementing international drug control treaties and at reducing illicit demand. Two separate presentations were given on the activities of the Division aimed at developing and executing technical assistance projects by providing laboratory equipment, training laboratory personnel and at disseminating reference standards and scientific information with extrabudgetary support from UNFDAC.

57. The observers for UNFDAC, CCC, ICPO/Interpol, ASEAN and the Colombo Plan Bureau gave presentations on their programmes in the field of drug law enforcement and on their drug-related activities in the region.

58. The observer for UNFDAC recalled that the Fund was the major multilateral funding agency for technical assistance provided to developing countries in drug abuse control. He gave a presentation on UNFDAC-funded projects in various fields, placing particular emphasis on crop-substitution programmes, law enforcement assistance and fresh initiatives to develop a subregional approach involving operational cross-border projects in countries in Asia and the Pacific. UNFDAC-financed projects were being planned or implemented in the following countries of the region: Afghanistan, Bangladesh, China, India, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Malaysia, Myanmar, Nepal, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Thailand.

59. The observer for ICPO/Interpol informed the Meeting of the efforts of his organization to enhance co-operation between national police services, particularly the exchange of relevant information on illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances (DND/HONLAP/CRP.25). That exchange of information had been greatly facilitated following the acquisition of a computerized communication data base at ICPO/Interpol headquarters at Lyon. The Meeting was informed of the functioning of the drug liaison officer scheme. Foreign liaison officers posted in Thailand and in countries in west Africa were organized in a forum called the Foreign Anti-Narcotics Community, which provided closer co-operation between them and the host country's drug law enforcement agency.

60. The observer for CCC stated that, on December 1987, the CCC/Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) Regional Liaison Office, based in the Hong Kong customs service, had begun functioning as the region's information and co-ordination centre. The Meeting was informed of the objectives of the CCC/ESCAP Regional Liaison Office, of activities undertaken within the framework of the CCC/ESCAP Action Plan, of efforts to promote international legal instruments of CCC of improvement, made in the co-operation between customs services in the region.

61. The observer for ASEAN described the drug-control activities of his organization in the region, making particular reference to regional projects that had been implemented (DND/HONLAP/1990/CRP.2). The observer for the Colombo Plan Bureau focused his presentation on the training activities of his organization.

62. The representative of India drew the Meeting's attention to the activities of States members of the South Asian Association for Regional Co-operation (SAARC) in the field of drug law enforcement. The Meeting agreed to invite the secretariat of SAARC to be represented by an observer at the Sixteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific.

VI. ENTRY INTO FORCE AND PROVISIONAL APPLICATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS CONVENTION AGAINST ILLICIT TRAFFIC IN NARCOTIC DRUGS AND PSYCHOTROPIC SUBSTANCES

63. For its consideration of agenda item 7, on the entry into force and provisional application of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, the Meeting had before it a background paper prepared by the Division of Narcotic Drugs (DND/HONLAP/1990/3).

64. In introducing agenda item 7, the Director of the Division informed the Meeting that Spain had deposited the twentieth instrument of ratification on 13 August 1990 and, as a result, the Convention would enter into force on 11 November 1990, less than two years after its adoption by a conference of plenipotentiaries, held at Vienna from 25 November to 20 December 1988.

Twenty-five instruments of ratification or accession had been received as of 10 October 1990. He appealed to the participants from States that had not ratified or acceded to the Convention to expedite the procedures so that its provisions could be implemented universally. The Director reminded the participants that the General Assembly, in its resolution 44/140, had urged States to establish the necessary legislative and administrative measures so that their internal juridical regulations could be made compatible with the spirit and scope of the Convention. He recalled that the conference of plenipotentiaries that had adopted the Convention, the Economic and Social Council in its resolutions 1989/13 and 1989/19 and the General Assembly in its resolution 44/140 had all urged States to provisionally apply the provisions of the Convention to the extent possible pending their ratification or accession to it. He informed the Meeting that the Division was able to provide States, at their request, with legal and technical assistance that would enable them to adopt the necessary legislative measures and administrative mechanisms.

65. Referring to the increase in illicit drug trafficking, several participants welcomed the early entry into force of the Convention. Several mentioned the establishment of an inter-agency committee of experts to study and adopt measures to promote compliance with the Convention. Several participants referred to new administrative and legal measures adopted or being considered for adoption in their countries in order to bring about desirable changes in the areas covered by the Convention and to prepare the ground for ratification. With reference to article 12 of the Convention, one participant said that his Government had prohibited the export of three chemical precursors without export certificates: acetic anhydride, ether and trichloromethane. Some participants referred to legislative measures in their countries that had made money laundering a criminal offence and that provided for the confiscation of assets. Such provisions were considered major deterrents to crimes involving illicit drug trafficking.

66. Several participants identified specific measures in the Convention that had been difficult to implement at the national level, including the jurisdiction of a State over offences committed outside its territory (article 4), the scope and extent of confiscation (article 5), controlled delivery (article 11) and the monitoring of precursors (article 12). Several participants referred to novel enabling legislation or amendments to existing legislation that were before their parliaments. Following the adoption of certain legislative provisions, such as extradition and mutual legal assistance, their Governments would be in a position to deposit their instruments of ratification. Some participants indicated that their Governments would deposit their instruments of ratification or accession in 1990.

67. Some participants informed the Meeting of bilateral agreements entered into by their Governments in order to enhance the implementation of the Convention.

VII. OTHER BUSINESS

68. The Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs presented to the Meeting a résumé of the outcome of the seventeenth special session of the General Assembly, with particular emphasis on the Global Programme of Action contained in General Assembly resolution S-17/2, annex, and its implications for the fight against illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. He said that the Division had been given new mandates and that the General Assembly would discuss additional resources for their implementation at its forty-fifth session in November 1990. He emphasized that the implementation of new mandates was dependent on additional resources being made available to the Division.

VIII. DRAFT RESOLUTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS BEFORE THE MEETING

69. At its 9th meeting, on 19 October 1990, the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, approved two draft resolutions for adoption by the Economic and Social Council through the Commission on Narcotic Drugs. The first (DND/HONLAP/1990/L.3), on the appointment of a full-time liaison officer for the co-ordination of drug-control activities in the region of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, was sponsored by India and the Republic of Korea. The second (DND/HONLAP/1990/L.2), on the establishment of a directory of national drug law enforcement contact points, was sponsored by Thailand and Tonga. For the texts, see chapter I, section A, draft resolutions I and II.

70. The Meeting approved a third draft resolution (DND/HONLAP/1990/L.4), on the development and implementation of an international training strategy as a matter of urgency, sponsored by Australia, Canada and Samoa, at that same meeting. For the text, see chapter I, section B.

IX. ADOPTION OF THE REPORT OF THE MEETING

71. The report of the Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, was adopted at the 10th meeting on 19 October 1990.

X. ORGANIZATION OF THE MEETING

A. Opening and duration of the Meeting

72. The Fifteenth Meeting of HONLEA, Asia and the Pacific, was held at Beijing from 15 to 19 October 1990. The Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs opened the Meeting on behalf of the Secretary-General.

73. The Director of the Division of Narcotic Drugs drew attention to the fact that China was the first country to suffer from the massive addiction of its population as a result of the legalization of the trade in opium imposed upon it in the nineteenth century following the Opium Wars. He paid homage to the Government and people of China for having suppressed illicit traffic in and the abuse of opium in the 1950s. Noting the considerable increase world-wide in the quantity and frequency of seizures of opium, heroin, cannabis and psychotropic substances, he called for measures to effectively curb the illicit supply, particularly by reducing illicit cultivation and dismantling illicit trafficking networks. Of equal importance was the urgent need for reducing the illicit demand for drugs as part of a balanced strategy covering all aspects of drug abuse and the illicit traffic that fed that abuse. He said that the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances constituted one of the most powerful tools to combat illicit traffic and that its effective and universal implementation would assist the international community in countering the destabilization campaigns waged by illicit drug trafficking syndicates.

74. The State Councillor and Minister for Public Security of China expressed the concern of his Government with the increase in the scale of drug abuse and illicit traffic in Asia and the Pacific and called for the enhancement of co-operation and exchange of experience in drug abuse control and law enforcement. Referring to the situation after the 1840s, when China suffered from opium addiction on a mass scale, he reiterated the determination of his Government to continue its resolute fight against drug abuse and illicit traffic. He emphasized that regional and international co-operation in the field of drug control was vital, particularly in dealing with the transnational criminal activities of illicit drug traffickers.
